ANOTHER BLOODY RIOT Out in the W. & L. E. Mining Region-A. House Domolished.

The dago miners, out along the Wheeling & Lake Eric railroad, are proving anything but a desirable addiion to the population of that section. Almost every pay day or holiday there is a big row. The Fourth was no exception, according to the following from the Steubenville Herald:

the Steubenville Herald:

The residents of those cosmopolitan cities of Laurelton, Dillonvale and Long Run, in the lower part of this county, if they have not a due approciation of the political benefits conferred by the event which is commencerated on July 4, yet have a lively appreciation of the advantages afforded by the day itself towards getting up a first-class row. Warren and Mr. Pleasure towards upon the province the province of the series of the province of the pro by the day itself towards getting up a first-class row. Warren and Mt. Pleasant townships, being both prohibition, have no salcons. But it would not do to infer from this that all the inhabitants composing those townships restrict themselves to cold water as a beverage. Very far from it. When a train stops at one of the stations above mande there is presented the curious spectacle of a goodly proportion of the male population of the village wending its way towards the baggage car. In a few minutes the procession moves away again in single file, each one bearing a key of beer on his shoulder, and the mystery is explained. Consequently there are rows and fights innumerable, and yesterday being a holiday the opthere are rows and fights innumerable, and yesterday being a holiday the oppertunity for this sort of annusement was unusually good. In justice to these localities, however, it should be stated that Monday's racket did not begin at home, but on the Wheeling & Lake Erie Train coming from Martin's Ferry in the aiternoon, on which were a number of Hungarians returning home. They had pretty well filled up with Wheeling whiskey, and an Englishman en the train having excited the wrath one of the Hungarians, a fight folof one of the Hungarians, a fight fol-lowed. There was more or less fighting until Portland was reached, and after cars were changed it was renewed, and cars were changed it was renewed, and speedily became a free for all. Women in the car became alarmed, and a man in endeavoring to protect one of them from the ruffiaus had his eyes blacked and was badly beaten. A railroad bridge contractor was attacked by the drunken crowd, and knocked six of them down (fact) before they came to the conclusion to let him alone. George McCartney, who belonged to Long's Run, was also in the fracts, and whon the train stopped at laurelton he picked up a piece of wood train it was joined by the home forces, and the fighting continued until not less than a dozen persons were more or less injured. The occupants of one of the buildings having excited the fury of the drunken mob, they proceeded to demolish the house, a cheap frame, which they did effectually. At this point the superintendent of the coal works sent word to Mt. Pleasant that the rioters were destroying property, and Constable McMasters summoned a posse large enough te kidnap the state of West Virginia if necessary, and about dark left for the seat of war. Mr. Wilson Thinks There is No Doubt About the Honster State.

New YORK, July 5 .- A man suspiciously close to the half century mark of life comfortably filled an office chair at the Mariborough last night, He was W. B. Wilson, a man of many occupations, who lives when at home, which is seldom, upon a big farm not far from the town of Buffalo, Ind. An ex-member town of Buffalo, Ind. An ex-member of the hoosier state senate, an observant politician and an admirer of President Harrison, is this same Mr. Wilson. "What are weed Indianagoing to do?" repeated Mr. Willson. "Why, do our share toward sending our Ben to the White House for another four years, and what is more, we are going to give

White House for another four years, and, what is more, we are going to give him our electoral votes without ifs or ands. There is no question of hiscarrying his own state. He was successful before, wasn't he, when the entire federal and state patronage was used against him? Well, this time we have got the benefit of the organization, and in a state that ordinarily hangs in the balance a leverage of that kind, when intelligently worked comes prety near balance a leverage of that kind, when intelligently worked, comes pretty near knocking the persimmons."

"Is your party united for Harrison?"

"Not in the sense that every Republican in the state is standing up on a chair yelling for our man, for of course there are some kickers. In fact, I wouldn't give much for a public man who did not antagonize some men in his party, for where you find a man wearing high political honors who has not incurred some active enmittles you can put him down as a milksop and a political accident. There are lots of kickers in our state, but they are not dangerous, and are only holding off for a little petting,"

"Will Harrison gain by reason of a little petting,"
"Will Harrison gain by reason of Gray's defeat?

'I don't think that will make any difference. Gray is not any too strong in Indiana. The fact that Gray has not in Indiana. The fact that Gray has not been taken care of may lead to some troublesome complications in the Demiceratic ranks between Voorhoos and Turpie on the one hand and Gray on the other that will probably result advantageously to the Republicans; but I don't believe in basing my hopes for my party's success on the internal quarrels of its opponents. All I know is that we are going to win, and win casy."

that we are going to win, and wineasy."

"How will the nomination of Chase for governor affect the outcome?"

"Holp it, if any help is necessary, for Chase will bring to the front an element that seldom comes above the surface of the political waters, and anything that aids Chase will boost Harrison."

A SAD AFFAIR.

A Man Accidentally Shoots a Friend and Then Kills Himself.

LOUISVILLE, Kr., July 5.-George Benzer, a brewery employe, accidentally senzer, a browery employe, accidentally shot and fatally wounded William Ochs this morning, and then shot himself dead. They were at the browery owned by Ochs' father-in-law, and got to fooling with Benzer's pistol. Benzer pointed the weapon at Ochs and said joking-ly: "Look out, I'll shoot you." The weapon was discharged, sending the ball through Ochs' brain. Benzer then in terror ran upstairs and shot himself through the brain.
